DOJ OFFICIAL WRAY TO REPLACE COMEY

1 President Donald Trump selected former U.S. Justice Department official Christopher Wray as FBI director to replace the fired James Comey. Wray, who represented New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie in the so-called Bridgegate scandal and was assistant attorney general in the Justice Department dealing with corporate fraud and financial markets cases, will need Senate confirmation to take the top job at the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Wray served from 2003 to 2005 at the Justice Department under former President George W. Bush as an assistant attorney general in charge of its criminal division. Wray had an initial interview with the Justice Department on May 24 and met with Trump on May 30. REUTERS

LA SUED FOR INADEQUATE HOUSING FOR DISABLED

2 The United States has joined a lawsuit accusing Los Angeles of failing to develop affordable housing for disabled people, despite accepting millions of dollars of federal funds for that purpose, the Department of Justice said on Wednesday. The decision to intervene adds legal firepower to a whistleblower case brought by Los Angeles wheelchair user Mei Ling, and signals the government's belief it has a greater chance of success than typical of False Claims Act lawsuits. It also follows Los Angeles' agreement last August to settle litigation by several advocacy groups by spending at least $200 million over a decade to provide 4,000 affordable apartments for people with disabilities. The lawsuit accused Los Angeles of falsely certifying its compliance with the Fair Housing Act. REUTERS

TRAIN STABBINGS SUSPECT CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE

3 The man accused of murdering two men and wounding a third on a Portland, Oregon, train was led away from a courtroom on Wednesday by sheriff's deputies as he shouted that he had acted in self defense. Jeremy Christian, 35, had stood quietly in a glass-walled holding cell in the courtroom throughout a brief appearance until its conclusion, when he blurted out that he was "not guilty of anything but defending myself against violent aggression by Micah Fletcher," the surviving victim of the attack.

Fletcher was in court for the hearing. Christian was charged with murder in the May 26 stabbing deaths of two men who intervened on a commuter train when he shouted religious slurs at two African-American women. REUTERS

FACEBOOK FEATURES TO BOOST CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

5 Facebook announced three new features intended to boost civic engagement among users in the United States on its platform by connecting them more easily with their elected representatives. The new offerings come as Facebook has sought to rehabilitate its image as a credible source of information following a wave of criticism after the company did too little to combat misleading or wholly fabricated political news stories during the presidential election campaign. Among the features, Facebook will now allow users to turn on "Constituent Badges" to identify them as living in their elected officials' district. The opt-in badge will be visible when a user comments on content shared by their federal, state and local representatives. Facebook also announced "Constituent Insights," which allows elected officials and other users to find local news stories that are popular in their district. REUTERS

Q: How do you know when nurse staffing at Tufts Medical Center is inadequate?

A: When Tufts — on a nearly daily basis — sends out last minute, blast texts asking nurses to fill open shifts and holes in the schedule. That's how.

These are actual texts, modified to protect contact information only.

The registered nurses at Tufts Medical Center know all too well when a hospital's nurse staffing is chronically inadequate. Coping with bare-bones staffing has become a way of life for them, and there is no sign that things will improve any time soon. This practice is wrong, and this practice is dangerous.

Bad for Patients

From shift to shift, no one ever really knows if there will be enough nurses to provide patients with the care they deserve. And when those blast-texted shifts aren't filled, the remaining RNs are forced to care for too many patients at once. This is a dangerous practice that is well documented.

Bad for Nurses

When blast texts about open shifts flood RNs' cell phones, two things happen: 1) those who ARE NOT scheduled to work feel pressured to take extra shifts in the name of patient safety, and 2) those who ARE scheduled to work head to the hospital fearful of what the day has in store. Both situations are stressful and exhausting for nurses.

Bad for Budgets

This approach to staffing can also sink budgets, with hundreds of thousands of dollars unnecessarily spent on overtime and incentive pay — money that could instead be spent on adding new nursing positions.

It's time to end the blast texts and for Tufts management to safely staff the hospital during each and every shift.

James Comey will testify Trump asked him to let Flynn investigation go

"I replied only that 'he is a good guy.' ... I did not say I would 'let this go,'" Comey wrote.

KIMBERLY M. AQUILINA

Former FBI Director James Comey will say on Thursday that President Donald Trump asked him to "see your way clear to letting this go," referring to the investigation into former national security adviser Michael Flynn, according to a copy of his opening remarks posted online.

"I felt compelled to document my first conversation with the president-elect in a memo," the testimony notes stated on the Senate Intelligence Committee's website. "To ensure accuracy, I began to type it on a laptop in an FBI vehicle outside Trump Tower the moment I walked out of the meeting. Creating written records immediately after one-on-one conversations with Mr. Trump was my practice from that point forward. This had not been my practice in the past. I spoke alone with President Obama twice in person [and never on the phone] — once in 2015 to discuss law enforcement policy issues and a second time, briefly, for him to say goodbye in late 2016. In neither of those circumstances did I memorialize the discussions. I can recall nine one-on-one conversations with President Trump in four months — three in person and six on the phone."

Another part reads: "He then said, 'I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go.' I replied only that 'he is a good guy.' [In fact, I had a positive experience dealing with Mike Flynn when he was a colleague as director of the Defense Intelligence Agency at the beginning of my term at FBI.] I did not say I would 'let this go.'"

According to reports, Comey told Attorney General Jeff Sessions that he did not want to be left alone with Trump that meeting, believing Sessions should protect the FBI from any interference by the president. Comey also told Trump that if he wanted information on investigations, that he should follow proper channels and not contact the director directly.

"On the morning of March 30, the president called me at the FBI," Comey wrote on page six

"He asked what we could do to 'lift the cloud.' I responded that we were investigating the matter as quickly as we could, and that there would be great benefit, if we didn't find anything, to our having done the work well. He agreed, but then re-emphasized the problems this was causing him."

of the seven-page document. "He described the Russia investigation as 'a cloud' that was impairing his ability to act on behalf of the country. He said he had nothing to do with Russia, had not been involved with hookers in Russia, and had always assumed he was being recorded when in Russia. He asked what we could do to 'lift the cloud.' I responded that we were investigating the matter as quickly as we could, and that there would be great benefit, if we didn't find anything, to our having done the work well. He agreed, but then re-emphasized the problems this was causing him."

US spy agencies probe another flank in Russian hacking

Russian hacking of the 2016 U.S. election included sophisticated targeting of state officials responsible for voter rolls and voting procedures, according to a top secret U.S. intelligence document that was leaked and published this week, revealing another potential method of attempted interference in the vote.

The month-old National Security Agency document outlined activities including impersonating an election software vendor to send trick emails to more than 100 state election officials. Analysts at the NSA believed the hackers were working for the Russian military's General Staff Main Intelligence Directorate, or GRU, according to the document.

The document's publication on Monday by The Intercept, a news outlet that focuses on security issues, received particular attention because an intelligence contractor, Reality Leigh Winner, was charged the same day with leaking it.

U.S. intelligence agencies have previously said the Kremlin tried to influence the election outcome in favor of Republican candidate Donald Trump through leaks during the campaign of hacked emails from Democratic Party officials, aimed at discrediting Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton.

The new revelations suggest that U.S. investigators are also still probing a more direct attempt to attack the election itself, and a federal official confirmed that is the case.

However, there is no evidence that hackers were able to manipulate votes, or the vote tally. The document says at least one employee of the software vendor had an account compromised but does not cover whether any of the elections officials were also successfully compromised.

COMEY'S BIG MOMENT

TOM
FOREMANOpinion*

CNN's Tom Foreman is the author of the book "My Year of Running Dangerously."

You have your popcorn. You've loaded up on Sour Patch Kids. Maybe you even have a frosty soda ready so you won't have to step away from your big-screen plasma and miss a moment of James Comey's testimony before the Senate Intel Committee. After all, the fired FBI Director is going to be hotter than "Hamilton" for at least a few hours. But it occurs to you: "Wait! I don't know what to look for!"

Fear not. Here are the three key questions of the day.

1) Did President Trump pressure Comey to drop the Russia investigation?

The White House says of course not. But according to Comey's prepared opening statement at one meeting, President Trump spoke about the part of the investigation aimed at now-dismissed National Security Adviser Michael Flynn. "I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go," the president allegedly said while talking about his need for "loyalty." Democrats will want a lot of details about this and subsequent events so they can ask whether Comey felt it was obstruction of justice. Because if he says yes, that's a paving stone toward their distant dreams of impeachment.

2) But if it was obstruction, why didn't Comey speak up?

This is likely the Republican line of attack. Watch for them to flag the fact that even though Comey took notes, he did not call out the president's actions at the time. Rather, most of this emerged after Comey was fired and the president had accused him of doing a poor job. For some GOPers, the goal is clear: pin a name tag on Comey that says "untrustworthy, disgruntled former employee."

3) All of that aside, was anyone making borscht with the Russians?

Remember, this whole mess started with the idea the Russians were meddling with the election. Comey is generally cagey with info about investigations (Hillary's emails aside) but keep your ears open. If he hints at collusion between anyone on Team Trump and the Kremlin, it will send a shock wave down Pennsylvania Avenue hard enough to rattle the White House china.

Quincy dispensary creates marijuana-infused pizza

The pot pie is a way to integrate medical marijuana seamlessly into patients' lives, the dispensary said.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

The most ubiquitous marijuana edible is, of course, the brownie, but for patients visiting a nonprofit dispensary in Quincy, there's a more savory option: pot pizza.

Ermont Inc. in Quincy unveiled this week the new edition to its edible menu. The 6-inch cheese pizza comes frozen and infused with 125 milligrams of the dispensary's own THC distillate.

"We are pleased to offer a new, more appetizing way for our patients to alleviate pain and discomfort," said Jack Hudson, CEO and founder of Ermont, in a statement. "The combination of a food as popular as pizza with the medicinal benefits of marijuana represents an important milestone in the evolution of our high-quality marijuana-infused products menu."

Ermont's edibles team, composed of operations manager Seth Yaffe, cannabinoid-infusion consultant Adam Gendreau and chef Keith Brooks, developed the pie. It's not the first unexpected edible Ermont has created, either.

The dispensary opened in October 2016, and along with fruit chews, muffins and lozenges, it offers hot fudge, peanut butter and pub cheese all laced with THC. Around the Super Bowl, the menu featured marijuana mac and cheese, queso dip and even hot sauce.

"We wanted [our edibles] to be something that, first, took our patients' minds off of medicine. We have patients taking tremendous amounts of pills," he said.

The idea of providing savory edible options helps marijuana-as-medicine be "better able to fit a normal day-to-day experience," he added. Most edibles are sweet, but some patients don't want to be eating candy or brownies all day long to get their doses.

There are a few medicinal benefits to eating a pot pizza rather than smoking a joint, as well. Yaffe said that edibles provide a longer-lasting effect of the THC, to alleviate pain and discomfort for a longer period of time.

The personal pizza is also one of the first edibles designed as a full meal rather than a small snack or lozenge.

"For a lot of patients, eating, in general, is tough — if they're coming off chemo or dealing with nausea," Yaffe said. "To have a couple of bites of something and get that feeling of relief from the nausea, having an appetite then they have something that they can continue to eat — that's why we thought the pizza was a good idea."

To Ermont, it's about truly integrating this medication seamlessly into people's lives. Of course, the pizza tastes good too, Yaffe said. "Not only are patients excited to have a medicated pizza, but most say it's better than any frozen pizza they've had," he said. He added that he has tried it and agrees.

It's prepared like any other frozen pizza, but Yaffe noted that it's in a childproof and tamper-proof container, clearly marked as medicine, so as not to be confused with other goods in a family freezer.

Ermont dispensary in Quincy created this marijuana-infused frozen pizza. PROVIDED BY ERMONT

Lyft partners with nuTonomy to test self-driving cars for passenger pickup in Boston

Would you want to be picked up in a driverless car?

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

Requesting a Lyft in Boston may soon bring you a driverless car.

The ride-hailing company has partnered with Cambridge-based nuTonomy to develop self-driving cars to pick up Lyft passengers.

The collaboration will come together in Boston; the pilot will kick off in the coming months, and tests will be conducted in the same Raymond L. Flynn Marine Park that was the site of nuTonomy's first self-driving tests last November.

The autonomous car company has expanded its self-driving vehicles to rove around the Seaport and Fort Point streets.

As with nuTonomy's testing procedure, an engineer will ride along to observe and take over controls if needed.

"By combining forces with Lyft in the U.S., we'll be positioned to build the best passenger experience for self-driving cars," Karl Iagnemma, CEO and co-founder of nuTonomy, said in a statement. He added that both companies "care immensely about solving urban transportation issues and the future of our cities."

Uber has already

been in the self-driving ride-hailing game. Their driverless pickup option started in Arizona in February (and made headlines again at the end of March when a self-driving Uber there was involved in a high-speed crash), and the company has engineers working on autonomous technology.

Lyft isn't dispatching their own engineers like Uber, as The New York Times pointed out, but instead making multiple partnerships with those already working on self-driving initiatives.

Lyft and Waymo, the self-driving car development company under Google's parent company, are also working together to bring about the autonomous tech, the Times reported in May.

The Lyft and nuTonomy partnership still has to figure out logistics like regulations; the pilot needs approval from MassDOT and the city.

Both the city and the state have worked toward implementing autonomous technology — Mayor Marty Walsh announced a partnership with the World Economic Forum in September to create policies and support the production of self-driving cars, and Gov. Charlie Baker signed an executive order in October to create a working group on the implementation of such vehicles.

The additional detail of carrying passengers means the memorandum of understanding the city has with nuTonomy needs to be revised.

A representative from the mayor's press office said that the city looks forward to working through the process with nuTonomy and with state officials "as we continue to prioritize safety in the exploration of autonomous vehicles."

Ditch the theater for a night under the stars. MATTHEW DINARO

Watching a movie at the park on a steamy summer night is one of the perks of living in the city. You'll have plenty of chances to enjoy an evening under the stars this season with a slew of outdoor movie series. Since many of the flicks usually skew toward families and mainstream tastes, you're out of luck if you want to see "Goodfellas" or "Pulp Fiction." But if you're looking for a way to get the kids outside while still letting them stare at a screen, check out one of these movie nights around Boston.

Cinema Somerville Outdoor Movie Series

Those unmoved by typical outdoor summer movie fare should hit up this series, taking place each Thursday in July, and offering a refreshingly random, decidedly old-school set of offerings, such as 1946's "Sherlock Holmes: Dressed to Kill" (July 6) and Roger Corman's 1960's oddity "The Little Shop of Horrors" (July 13). The series also includes screenings of 1954's "The Last Time I Saw Paris" (July 20), about an American journalist in Paris (Van Johnson) covering the close of World War II who finds a welcome admirer in Elizabeth Taylor, and the 1941 British mystery film "The Ghost Train" (July 27), about some passengers who get stuck at a supposedly haunted train station.

Movies by Moonlight

The Boston Harbor Hotel offers a rather eclectic series of crowd-pleasers this year, including "Moonstruck" (June 23), "Captain America" (July 7), "The Notebook" (July 14), "The Little Mermaid" (July 28), "Casablanca" (Aug. 11) and "My Big Fat Greek Wedding" (Aug. 25). As you can see, the selections lean towards rom-coms, maybe because the harbor scenery is already so romantic, so it just works nicely. That said, there's a touch of action thrown in for spice, including the closing film of the season, "Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl" (Sept. 8).

Free Friday Flicks

This annual summer movie series is heavy on the family fare, opening June 23 with "The Secret Life of Pets," starring Milton native Jenny Slate, and trotting out "Sing" (July 14), the live action "Jungle Book" (July 21), "Finding Dory" (July 28), "Moana" (Aug. 4) and "Lego Batman" (Aug. 11) as well. The last two picks are slightly more adult, with "Dr. Strange" (Aug. 18) and "Star Wars: Rogue One" (Aug. 25). Pro tip: if you're on the north side of Boston, they'll also be showing the same set of movies on Saturdays starting July 8 in Somerville's Sylvester Baxter Riverfront Park.

Magic 106.7 Family Film Festival

The Pru's series is similar to the ones at the Hatch Shell and Sylvester Baxter Riverfront Park, playing five of the same movies and focusing on family friendly stuff. The differing picks include 1982's "Annie" (July 1), Steven Spielberg's "The BFG" (July 15), Disney's 2016 remake of "Pete's Dragon" (July 22) and the live action "Beauty and the Beast" (Aug. 19), starring Hermio — ahem, Emma Watson.

Mayor Walsh's Movie Nights

The mayor himself presents this roving series of outdoor screenings in neighborhoods around Boston. "WALL-E" lands in Mattapan's Hunt/Almont Park Aug. 7, "E.T." in Dorchester's Savin Hill Park Aug. 17, "Pets" in Allston's Ringer Park Aug. 28, "Honey I Shrunk the Kids" at the Frog Pond on Boston Common Sept. 8 and "Top Gun" at the Frog Pond Sept. 15, because only Tom Cruise can truly declare an end to summer, especially the summer outdoor movie season. Why? Hollywood rules.

Provincetown Film Festival to honor Sofia Coppola

Bring your popcorn and artistic eye to the Cape this month.

HENRY JANI

Cinephiles won't want to miss out on the 2017 Provincetown Film Festival. From June 14 to 18, a host of Hollywood stars and acclaimed independent flicks will take over the small Cape Cod town for this year's festivities.

Sofia Coppola, who recently received the Best Director Award at the Cannes Film Festival, will be honored as the Filmmaker on the Edge for her latest work, "The Beguiled." The award focuses on filmmakers who aim to craft movies with a distinct style and vision.

According to executive director Christine Kunewa Walker, the fest's signature award best represents the event's goal of highlighting movies that are "edgy, diverse and important in many different ways." She also explains that the lineup is curated to match the many interests of their New England audience, including works that focus on LGBTQ and women's cinema.

Festivalgoers interested in queer film should check out "Beach Rats" by Eliza Hittman, a personal recommendation by Kunewa Walker. The movie explores the life of Frankie, a teenager in Brooklyn trying to escape his bleak home life by getting into trouble and flirting with older gentlemen online. Two other notable films directed by women include "32 Pills," in which director Hope Litoff closely studies her late sister's artwork and comes to terms with her suicide, as well as the comedy "Mr. Roosevelt," directed by "Master of None" cast member Noël Wells.

On top of the abundance of films, many events and panels will be hosted throughout the festival. John Waters, an integral supporter of the event, will appear at a book signing for his latest, "Make Trouble," inspired by his 2015 Rhode Island School of Design graduation speech.

Walker. "People get to talk and engage with him, which everyone loves."

Actress Chloë Sevigny will receive the Excellence in Acting Title Award, while former "Parks and Recreation" star Aubrey Plaza will take home the newly-minted Next Wave Award, which is for "people who make really strong choices in their work and are very committed to independent film," according to Kunewa Walker.

Kunewa Walker assures that the Provincetown Film Festival is a very comfortable and inviting environment.

"Film festivals can seem intimidating," she says. "But then people decide to come for a few films and they become lifers."

Watch bad B-movies with the 'Mystery Science Theater 3000' crew

Jonah Ray gets us pumped up for the MST3K live tour. MATT JULI

If you love laughing along with the "Mystery Science Theater 3000" team as they bash on bad B-movies, wait until you see them in person.

Host Jonah Ray and his sarcastic robot pals are hitting the road this summer for the Watch Out for Snakes! live tour, which kicks off at the Shubert Theatre on July 6. Fans of the recently revived cult classic series will get a chance to watch the awful 1962 flick "Begah" as the MST3K crew rips on it.

We caught up with the 34-year-old comic to get the lowdown on the live tour.

What should fans expect from the live tour?
It's going to be like an episode live. There's going to be a preshow with [co-star] Rebecca Hanson, and [creator] Joel Hodgson will be there taking questions. Once we get to the show, there's going to be sketches and video elements for the songs. It's going to be a nice, big, fun time.

Do you do a lot of prep work before ripping on these movies?

We don't want to leave anything to chance and hope that our comedic good graces will help us with coming up with stuff. We want it to be a good, solid show. We've been writing these just like we would an episode. With live, sometimes you can flub a line and it turns into something else like it would in any live theater situation.

Calling all MSTies.
DARREN MICHAELS / SMPSP

The show's return featured a ton of awesome guest stars. Do you have any favorites from the new season?

As far as the celebrity stuff, getting to meet Mark Hamill was crazy. Another cool element was my old boss from when I was working on "The Soup," Joel McHale; when he came to set, that was a lot of fun. I was in between some takes, I heard he was in his dressing room, so I went over in my jumpsuit. I was like, "Hey man good to see you. Pretty crazy right? I worked on your show, now you're appearing on my show." His response was, "Yeah, it's crazy. It's also crazy that they couldn't get you a jumpsuit that fit."

B-movies are a big part of the show. What's your favorite bad flick?

First off, you're being very nice to these movies by calling them B-movies. These are S-movies, I think ... As far as a movie that's not artistically regarded, I will always watch "Die Hard with a Vengeance," the third "Die Hard." I'm a big fan of that movie.

Commemorate Juneteenth with the Museum of Fine Arts

The MFA celebrates Juneteenth on June 21.
ELIZA VOGL PHOTOGRAPHY

The MFA will celebrate the holiday with free admission, movies and more.

BRENDAN MCGUIRK

The Museum of Fine Arts will hold a special event for the fifth straight year celebrating Juneteenth, which commemorates the enactment and ultimate enforcement of the Emancipation Proclamation to free American slaves in Texas and other disputed territories.

The museum will observe the holiday on Wednesday, June 21 with free admission starting at 5 p.m., as well as a night of film screenings, live painting, music, dance and spoken word performances that celebrate the African American experience. Epicenter Community, a community-focused entrepreneurial development nonprofit, largely coordinates programming for the evening.

According to officials, Juneteenth offers an opportunity to not only memorialize African Americans' historic struggle for equality and highlight the works of artists that hail from the local Boston community, but also to pursue the MFA's own emerging inclusive goals.

"The role of museums in societies [is] changing," says Linda Apple, director of community programs at the MFA. "It's not just a place to come and look at pretty things. We can be a place of convening, to bring people together to collaborate and engage in community in different ways."

One example of such engagement is the involvement of the Roxbury International Film Festival, which kicks off its 19th year the evening of the Juneteenth bash. The cinema series, which runs until July 1 and is dedicated to amplifying the voices and stories of people of color, has organized screenings at the MFA since its 1999 inception. For the second year in a row, the fest will provide the museum with Juneteenth programming via a pair of thematically appropriate films: "Paris Noir," a documentary exploring the long tradition of African American artists expatriating themselves to France; and "When Voices Rise," a documentary concerned with issues of segregation in Bermuda.

For the MFA, the Juneteenth and Roxbury International Film Festival present opportunities to reach audiences that might not have felt welcome by the institution in times past, and present them with new entry points through the gates.

"We are a world-class institution. We have this collection that spans all different time periods and cultures," Apple says. "[But] at the heart of what we want to present is that people can see themselves here."

For Roxbury International Film Festival director Lisa Simmons, the film and art collaboration presents the Boston community with a worthy chance to learn about experiences both alien and familiar, in a fitting environment.

"The opportunity [for audiences] is to be engaged, to be educated, to be inspired by stories that they would never normally see in a major megaplex," Simmons says. "They're beautifully told stories. Why shouldn't they be in a museum?"

Reasons why U2 at Gillette is the concert of the summer

The rockers are hitting the road to celebrate 30 years of "The Joshua Tree." BRENDAN MCGUIRK

Thirty years ago, U2 made an album that accomplished everything an album could. It sold over 25 million records. It won the Album of the Year at the Grammy Awards. It even launched a tour so massive it spawned a concert film and an album of its own.

The record propelled the band to global superstardom and, perhaps most significantly, it accomplished the rarest of pop feats by becoming a hit while still focusing on heavy themes of American angst in the face of a national crisis of faith.

On June 25, Bono, the Edge, Adam Clayton and Larry Mullen Jr. will visit Gillette Stadium in Foxboro to play "The Joshua Tree" in its entirety as part of the album's year-long 30th anniversary celebration. Here are five reasons why the show will turn out to be the Bay State's concert of the summer.

stuff while waiting to hear the classics. "The Joshua Tree" is all classics, from "Bullet the Blue Sky" to "With or Without You," and this front-to-back experience is the rare chance to enjoy all your favorite hits without any of those pesky songs that ever mysteriously invaded your iTunes.

making it the biggest in history. Perhaps, that is, until now.

3 The Boston connection

As anyone that's ever been to the Paradise Rock Club can tell you, Boston played a major role in breaking U2 to U.S. audiences. The band has shown the Bean a lot of love, and the city has returned the favor. In fact, the love is so real that in 2015 a horde of fans packed into the Burren in Somerville like sardines following reports suggesting that Bono and company might pay a visit to their old haunt for an exclusive event. (They didn't.)

4 They really do care

Once upon a time, Bono was mocked for using his platform as a celebrity to try and enact social change. Now that we've seen what it truly looks like when a callow celebrity leverages their fame for personal gain disguised as altruism, we can trust the intentions of those Irish fellows a little better.

5 Modern relevance

For U2, "The Joshua Tree" isn't just an album of its time, but one for today. When the tour was announced, Bono cited that the project contains "a lot of emotions which feel strangely current," including "love, loss, broken dreams, seeking oblivion, [and] polarization."

These days, as then, there's no shortage of issues dividing Americans, never mind citizens of the world. But if there's anything we might be able to enjoy together, it's the chorus to "With or Without You." All these years later, U2 is still building then burning down love, while audiences look to see what might still spring forth from the ashes.

Rock out with music legends

The Piano Man makes his Fenway Park return this summer. ALL PHOTOS BY GETTY IMAGES

Lady Gaga, Billy Joel and more are coming to town.

CATHERINE PERLOFF

There are more than a few reasons to hit up Fenway Park this summer besides cheering on the Red Sox. The Plainridge Park Casino Fenway Concert Series is bringing some pretty big acts to Boston, from rock legends and pop stars to folk icons and country crooners. Check out which shows you shouldn't miss out on this season.

June 17-18: Dead & Company

The fun kicks off with music legends that are sure to draw a big crowd. Dead & Company is one of the latest iterations of the Grateful Dead, whose career has spanned more than five decades and earned the band a place in the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame. This version of the group features original members Bob Weir, Mickey Hart and Bill Kreutzman, as well as Grammy-winning musician and New England native John Mayer on guitar. This is Dead & Company's third tour, with the set list drawing mostly from the Grateful Dead's classic repertoire.

July 7: Florida Georgia Line

Country duo Florida Georgia Line are stopping in Boston for their Smooth Tour, promoting 2016's "Dig Your Roots." The album sat for weeks at No. 1 on Billboard's country charts, thanks in part to their hit single "H.O.L.Y." Reflecting the band's genre-bending approach to country, the tour will include pop act Backstreet Boys, rapper Nelly and country artist Chris Lane.

July 8: New Kids on the Block

Those wishing to relive the heyday of the late '80s and early '90s music scene will be thrilled with the Total Package Tour. Boston's beloved boy band New Kids on the Block are returning home to play music from their six studio albums as well as their new EP "Thankful." Boyz II Men will open for NKOTB, another legendary group that may no longer appear as youthful as their names suggest. Rounding out the lineup is the legendary Paula Abdul, who's touring for the first time in 25 years.

Aug. 11: James Taylor
Another musician with Massachusetts roots, James Taylor is completing the last leg of his four-stop ballpark tour at Fenway. The Boston-born star will be joined by fellow Rock and Roll Hall of Fame member Bonnie Raitt, who's promoting her 2016 record "Dig in Deep."

Aug. 30: Billy Joel
The Piano Man is back. The celebrated singer, songwriter and musician will return to Fenway to play all the hits from his over 40-year musical career. Unfortunately for Joel fans, the concert is already sold out, but there is hope he might return to Boston soon, as this is Joel's fourth consecutive year playing at the home of the Red Sox.

Sept. 1-2: Lady Gaga
The concert series closes with a bang as Lady Gaga will take the stage in Boston this summer. Gaga is promoting her fifth studio album, "Joanne," which reached No. 1 on the Billboard charts and featured her hit single "Perfect Illusion." Fans who missed Lady Gaga's Super Bowl performance will have two chances to see her when she's in town.

Qualifying for your Medical Marijuana Card still makes sense!

Medical Marijuana is used to treat the following conditions:
• HIV/AIDS • Glaucoma • ALS • MS • Hepatitis C • Parkinson's • Crohn's • Cancer and any other condition our doctor recommends.

With a medical card:

- The cost will be cheaper. In Colorado recreational strains sell for $35 an eighth while the same strain for medical patients is $100/oz;
- No tax on medical – a 12% tax on recreational at this point. Washington State has a 37% tax on their recreational products;
- A discount for medical and possible insurance coverage for it;
- You may be exempt from any taxes if you are a registered patient as in Washington State;
- You may choose from a greater VARIETY, TYPE and STRENGTH of CBD and THC strains;

MEDICAL MARIJUANA IS AVAILABLE NOW.
- Recreational marijuana will not be sold in stores until 2018.

Eliza Dushku talks Boston Comic Con, 20 years of 'Buffy'

The Watertown native will celebrate the hit series at this year's convention.

MATT JUUL

Eliza Dushku will get the chance to celebrate 20 years of "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" right in her backyard when Boston Comic Con returns to the Seaport this summer.

The Watertown native, who portrayed the badass slayer Faith in the hit series, will make appearances at the convention on August 12 and 13 along with her former co-star James Marsters, aka the always-moody vampire Spike. The 36-year-old actress is pretty pumped for her geeky homecoming.

"Boston is my home," Dushku says. "My favorite city, place and people anywhere."

Before the fun kicks off at the Boston Convention & Exhibition Center later this year, we caught up with the "Buffy" star about the show's legacy, her favorite Seaport spots and more.

Do you have any favorite spots in the Seaport that you'd recommend to attendees during their stay over Boston Comic Con weekend? I've just only recently moved home, and the Seaport district is certainly booming these days! LoLa 42 is new and delicious, and badass Southie homegirl foodie goddess Barbara Lynch's restaurants, Menton (fancy) and Sportello (fun) are great. I'm reading Barbara's book, "Out of Line: A Life of Playing with Fire" now and she's just fantastic. My friends tease me for how much I eat and joke that my three brothers and I must have tapeworms. We really put food away, with joy.

Cosplaying is a big part of the whole comic con experience. If you ever got the chance to dress up for an event like this, which character would you choose, and why? I love dressing up as my "Buffy" character Faith, fans who know her and identify with her are the best, in my humble opinion. Not that I'm biased or anything. The question remains if I'd still be able to pull off my "Jay & Silent Bob Strike Back" diamond thief catsuit at 36 years old. I kinda think so.

Your "Buffy" co-star James Marsters will be making an appearance at this year's Boston Comic Con as well. How excited are you to celebrate 20 years of the show with your old pal in Boston?

Twenty years, my gosh, it's still so hard to believe it's been that long! I'll never forget running to Contempo Casuals at the Arsenal Mall in Watertown, at 17 years old, to buy a Faith outfit and a bag of silver punk jewelry for my audition tape. I had no idea, of course, at the time that would be the beginning of something that has been such a defining part of my life. James/Spike is great, the rapport he has with fans is electric and heart-warming at the same time. The fans love their bad boys and girls from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," that's for sure! But Faith and Spike were just written out so beautifully in the series. The arcs, twists and turns. They were at once evil and so relatable. I have thousands of fans who tell me Faith saved their lives, shaped their identities, helped them understand who and what they were and are. It's extraordinary.

As more powerful female characters take to the screen, do you think Faith and Buffy helped set the stage for "Wonder Woman,"

5 Other guests to see at Boston Comic Con

As Hollywood keeps cashing in on superhero flicks, it's no surprise that Boston's annual celebration of all things comic books continues to grow as well. Now in its 10th year, Boston Comic Con plans to be bigger and better than ever for its milestone anniversary this August, with a slew of the industry's most notable stars slated to come to town.

Stan Lee

At 94 years young, Marvel legend Stan Lee is still hitting the convention circuit and plans to return to the Hub for Boston Comic Con's 10th anniversary celebration. The creator of such iconic characters like Spider-Man, the Hulk, the X-Men and countless others was the guest of honor at the event two years, where Mayor Marty Walsh declared Stan Lee Day in Boston on Aug. 1, 2015.

Anthony Daniels

Yes, this is the droid you're looking for. Legendary "Star Wars" actor Anthony Daniels has spent decades traveling the galaxy as R2-D2's companion C-3PO, now he's shipping up to Boston for this year's con. Just don't expect him to spill the beans on any "Last Jedi" spoilers.

"Rocky Horror Picture Show"

Meet Brad, Magenta and even Dr. Frank-N-Furter when stars from the cult classic flick stop by the con. Tony-nominated actor Tim Curry will make an appearance on Saturday and Sunday, while his co-stars Meat Loaf, Barry Bostwick and Patricia Quinn will be there on all three days.

Jay and Silent Bob

They may not be Batman and Robin, but Jay and Silent Bob are still a pretty awesome dynamic duo. You'll have a chance to hang out with Kevin Smith and Jason Mewes at this year's Boston Comic Con, however, they'll only be in town on Friday, so don't forget to stop by.

So many superheroes

"Guardians of the Galaxy" and "Doctor Who" actress Karen Gillan will be on hand Saturday and Sunday for autograph and photo sessions, as well as "Star Trek" actor Karl Urban. "Arrow" stars John Barrowman, Katie Cassidy and David Ramsey will represent DC Comics' contingent of celebrities. Meanwhile, Ming-Na Wen of "Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D." and Charlie Cox of "Daredevil" will be there to represent Marvel's television properties.

PROVIDED

"Black Widow" and "Supergirl"?

It's become clear to me across my 25 plus years in Hollywood, reading female roles, watching what's out there, that Joss Whedon and "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" definitely helped set the stage for the powerful female roles and characters we're seeing today. I was never really the ultrafeminine nor girl-next-door (to say the least) and it could be confusing to see only that portrayed in film and TV during my adolescence. I love that my teenage niece can find Wonder Women out there today, I'm going to try and get her to watch "Buffy" with me someday soon too. Faith's legacy just is, and depending on who you ask, she empowered people by way of being her. With her past, her scars, her wounds, her M.O. and all.

Get roped into Houston

The City With No Limits is an offbeat gem with tons to offer foodies and culture seekers. KATIE HAUGLAND BOWEN, FLICKR

Discover this Texas city's hip hot spots, weird art and where to swim around the whole state.

LINDA LABAN
@MetroBOS

Austin is not the only happening city in the Lone Star state. After taking a turn in the spotlight as the host of Super Bowl LI, Houston is continuing to wow visitors with offbeat art and food. Despite being America's fourth largest city, many of its attractions are clustered in special districts, making it easy to take in lots of sites.

What's new on the new food scene

Forget barbecue and Tex-Mex; Houston's hottest restaurateurs right now are chef Hugo Ortega and Tracy Vaught.

This winter, the couple opened their fifth restaurant, Xochi, in a sleek modern space where Ortega and his pastry chef brother Ruben develop intricate, earthy dishes based on traditional flavors of Oaxaca, Mexico. Moles — from classic mole negro to mole de chichatana (ant mole) — and Oaxacan street dishes are a specialty. Most ingredients are handmade in-house, including the chocolate, which is ground from Mexican cacao beans. Or relax at the bar with some baked oysters and the finest tequila and mezcal cocktails.

The "secret" bar trend hasn't passed this city by. Located above local favorite bar The Pastry War is the speakeasy bar-within-a-bar Tongue-Cut Sparrow — the name is inspired by a Japanese tale of greed, jealousy and friendship.

True, it feels like you're heading somewhere illicit as you enter via stairs at the back of the downstairs bar, but the tiny space (just 25 seats) steeped in Old World Americana is a formal cocktail bar. There is no food, but complimentary bar snacks are served with the perfectly executed bespoke and classic cocktails.

See a totally distinct genre of art

The museum district concentrates Houston's 19 major institutes of art and culture in a walkable area, with special events taking place all summer long like Sci-Fi Super Powers WonderWeek at the Children's Museum of Houston, origami at the Jung Center and the latest modern art at Diverseworks.

To experience something many city dwellers without a car know nothing about, take a detour to the Rice Military neighborhood where, apart from the famous Beer Can House, you'll find the Art Car Museum.

Howard Hughes are buried, this unique museum celebrates what is an all-American art: transforming driving machines into rolling masterpieces, like this year's new standout, the bejeweled Purple Rain car topped with a statue of Prince straddling his motorbike.

Through painstaking craft and the wildest imagination, the basic tenet of Art Cars is to return what is a mass-produced item to an individual form of expression. The museum is free and open daily.

A hotel you'll remember

The hottest new item on the essential Houston attraction list is a swim (or inner-tube float) around Texas via the Texas-shaped lazy river on the sixth floor Parkview Terrace at the Marriott Marquis Houston, which opened in the winter.

One problem: Only hotel guests have access to the Parkview Terrace, which overlooks pretty Discovery Green park. But you can get in by booking a treatment at the hotel's gorgeous Pure Spa, which allows you entry to the 60,000-square-foot pool deck that also includes an infinity pool and a 13-person hot tub, along with the HighDive bar, cabanas and fire pits. Parkview Terrace is rightfully jammed on weekends, so just keep that tip under your recently purchased cowboy hat.

Sleep in a tree in Nuukio National Park. HONKALINTU

The Scandinavian country's summertime midnight sun makes even ordinary experiences special.

Fodor's Travel

Experience a wellness cave

Famed for its sauna culture, Finland is full of wellness-minded ways to indulge your body and mind. One of the most atmospheric spas is along the shores of Lake Saimaa in eastern Finland at Jarvisydän Resort in Rantasalmi. The hotel's new Lake Spa is inside a cave built into rocks surrounding the lake and has five saunas as well as six decadent hot soaking pools with natural rock bottoms. Cracks in the rock let natural light from outside filter into the spa, and huge timbers that are over 500 years old complete the natural aesthetic. Soak in the saunas, dip in the pools and — if you're feeling brave — finish off with a cold plunge in the lake, accessible right from the spa.

Hike with huskies

Dog sledding is an iconic Finnish winter-time activity. But even when the snow has melted in Finland you can still hang out with sled dogs. During the warmer months, from the beginning of May till late October, visit Era-Susi husky farm in Lapland to go hiking with the resident huskies. The more than 200 sled dogs here include Alaskan and Siberian breeds. After an intro to your animal, you'll be given a belt and a leash for the dog to set out for an energetic walk along nearby nature trails ranging from two to six hours, and include a stop by an open fire for a snack.

Tee off at midnight

If golfing is your passion, you'll love the extended hours of play during the summer months in Finland, when the midnight sun lets your game linger on well into the white night. Since it never really gets dark during the Finnish summer, you can actually tee up at midnight at some of the country's premier courses including Wiurila Golf & Country Club, Salo Golf and Meri-Teijo Golf.

Go windsurfing

Leave your bikini and board shorts back home when you dive into Finland's windsurfing culture in Hanko, a small seaside town on a peninsula southwest of Helsinki that's been called the Hamptons of Finland. And while you'll definitely need a wet suit to brave the waters here, the windsurfing and board-riding scene in Hanko is alive and kicking. Sign up for lessons at Surf Club Hanko or rent paddleboards, kiteboards and windsurfing boards if you already know what you're doing.

Camp in a tree tent

Finns, for the most part, are all about getting outside and enjoying their country's remarkable nature. So do as the locals do and spend a night camping in a tree in Nuukio National Park, a forest- and lake-filled area northwest of Helsinki. Local outfitter Honkalintu provides your tree tent as well as sleeping bags, towels, firewood, bottled water in the world, with just over 300 living in the lake. Five-hour guided kayaking trips into Linnansaari National Park offer one of your best shots at seeing the seals. You'll enjoy lunch by a campfire along the way and have the option to stop and swim, too.

Ride a steamship

Perched high on the banks of Lake Saimaa, Hotelli Punkaharju operates two of the world's oldest steamships that date to the early 20th century. You can step aboard the boats in the town of Savonlinna to reach the hotel on an especially scenic ride, and it's even possible to sleep onboard one of the boats where it docks at the hotel's jetty. Even if you're not spending the night in the luxury hotel or one of the rustic lakefront cabins, it's worth visiting for an atmospheric lunch of the local specialty — a lake fish called vendace — while soaking in the sublime forest and lake views.

Opera in a medieval castle

Operas by Verdi, Mozart and Tchaikovsky take the stage in one of the world's most spectacular settings to experience a live performance during the 2017 Savonlinna Opera Festival. The venue is the three-towered Olavinlinna castle, built in 1475 and located on an island in Lake Saimaa in the town of Savonlinna. The natural acoustics of the medieval stone castle are ideal for listening to operas.

Get in the Flow Festival

Flow Festival is one of Europe's best-loved celebrations among the creative set and always dishes up a good range of musical legends and indie up-and-comers. Set in the industrial chic setting of a historic power plant in Helsinki, the August festival gives rise to all manner of ancillary cultural and foodie events around the city, too. And with the summer days still long and lovely, it's one of the best moments of the year to be soaking up the city's atmosphere.

and an eco toilet, so all you have to bring is yourself. Breakfast is even served the next morning — back on terra firma.

Look for ringed seals

Finland's rarest animal, the Saimaa ringed seal, can sometimes be spotted during kayaking trips around the Lake Saimaa archipelago that leave from the quaint village of Oravi. The animals are considered the most endangered seals

When David Ortiz waved goodbye to Red Sox fans last fall, it was for the final time as a player. GETTY IMAGES

SORRY, BUT BIG PAPI IS NOT COMING BACK TO SOX

@dannypicard

I hate to be the bearer of bad news. But David Ortiz is not walking back through that door. If he did, he'd probably pick up right where he left off. Unfortunately, it's just not happening. I don't care what Pedro Martinez tweets.

On Monday night at 10:30 p.m., the former Red Sox ace tweeted, "Big Papi is working out, and I know he is in baseball shape, and the @RedSox could use a bit of his bat."

Stating the time is relevant here because at 11:14 p.m., Pedro then tweeted, "I didn't say David is making a come back, I said David is in baseball shape because he works out, and the team could use a swing or two."

Don't get me wrong, everything that Pedro said in his first tweet was true. I trust him on the "working out" stuff, and for sure, the Boston Red Sox could use his bat.

It's just that, the very next day, the organization sent out an email about new ticket plans which include tickets to "David Ortiz's No. 34 retirement ceremony."

I realize that Big Papi has a flair for the dramatic, but I don't expect him to show up to his pregame retirement ceremony on June 23, grab the microphone, and say, "I'm baaaaack."

Not only do I not expect that, but neither does the Red Sox organization.

I recently went back and listened to what Sox president Sam Kennedy had to say about Ortiz' retirement on my podcast, when he joined me in-studio on Nov. 30, nearly two months after the season was completed.

I asked him, "Just to make it official, he is done, right? Ortiz is done?"

Kennedy responded, "He is done. He has told us he's done. He's got these two heels, this bursitis. They don't call it the Achilles for nothing. He's been playing hurt for so long, which makes what he did [in 2016] even more incredible."

He continued, "There's been no conversation. He officially filed his retirement papers. So, he's done. But it hurts me to say that because I've only been a part of the Red Sox — other than 2002 when it was my first year here — every other year we've had David in the middle of that lineup, and we're going to miss him."

He was right. The Red Sox do miss him. And it would be awesome if Ortiz did grab the mic at Fenway and announce his return.

But this isn't WWE. Ortiz isn't The Rock. And Kennedy isn't Vince McMahon.

So I don't think the president of the Red Sox is hiding something when he says it's over. And if the retirement ceremony is still on — which it is — then you can stop praying for Ortiz's glorious return. Because it's just not going to happen. I don't care what Pedro tweets.

As superhuman as pro athletes may sometimes seem, we forget that these guys can feel pain just like the rest of us. And Kennedy's comments were a reminder as to just how much of a toll the game was taking

Red Sox return to Fenway this weekend

The Red Sox will return home on Friday after a relatively successful road trip that began on Memorial Day against the White Sox. At Fenway for three games this weekend are the Detroit Tigers, who are hovering around .500 but are just 2.5 games out of first place in the ugly AL Central. The Tigers will send Jordan Zimmerman (5-4, 5.98 ERA) to the mound Friday, with Brian Johnson (2-0, 2.57) getting the ball for the Red Sox.

The marquee matchup in the series will take place Saturday night when Justin Verlander (4-4, 4.63 ERA) will face Chris Sale (7-2, 2.89 ERA).

In a nationally televised game Sunday night, Daniel Norris (2-4, 4.48 ERA) will toe the rubber for Detroit, with Drew Pomeranz (6-3, 4.02) pitching for the Sox.

Matt Burke

on Ortiz' body.

The guy could still produce if he wanted to. He just doesn't want to deal with the daily physical anguish that went along with it anymore. That was true at the end of last season. And it remains true to this day.

So I hate to be the bearer of bad news here, but if the Red Sox are going to win a World Series in 2017 and beyond, they'll have to do it without Big Papi.

And you can tell Pedro to retweet that.

Ungaro to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as nominee for, Encore Credit Corp., its successors and assigns, dated August 11, 2005 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 37958, Page 260 subsequently assigned to Deutsche Bank National Trust Company, As Trustee for Bravo Mortgage Asset Trust 2006-1, Bravo Mortgage Asset Backed Pass-Through Certificates, Series 2006-1 by Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as nominee for, Encore Credit Corp., its successors and assigns by assignment recorded in said Suffolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 50186, Page 162; of which Mortgage the undersigned is the present holder for breach of the conditions of said Mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing same will be sold at Public Auction at 9:00 AM on June 15, 2017 at 1870 Commonwealth Avenue Unit #15, Boston (Brighton), MA, all and singular the premises described in said Mortgage.

TO WIT:

All that parcel of land in Suffolk County, State of Massachusetts, as more fully described in Book 29438 Page 162, and being more particularly described as follows: Unit No. 15 of the Chestnut Hill Park condominium created by Master Deed dated May 20, 1985 and recorded in Suffolk Registry of Deed Book 11603, Page 177 and shown on a Plan recorded in said Registry of Deed therewith. A.P.N. Map 210 Block 23333 Lot 162

Upon information and belief there is a scrivener's error in the legal description attached to the insured mortgage wherein the following needs to be added: "The undivided percentage interest of the unit in the common areas and facilities is .809%"

The premises are to be sold subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, building and zoning laws, liens, attorney's fees and costs pursuant to M.G.L.Ch.183A, unpaid taxes, tax titles, water bills, municipal liens and assessments, rights of tenants and parties in possession.

TERMS OF SALE:

A deposit of FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS AND 00 CENTS ($5,000.00) in the form of a certified check, bank treasurer's check or money order will be required to be delivered at or before the time the bid is offered. The successful bidder will be required to execute a Foreclosure Sale Agreement immediately after the close of the bidding. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid within thirty (30) days from the sale date in the form of a certified check, bank treasurer's check or other check satisfactory to Mortgagee's attorney. The Mortgagee reserves the right to bid at the sale, to reject any and all bids, to continue the sale and to amend the terms of the sale by written or oral announcement made before or during the foreclosure sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the deposit paid. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Mortgagor, the Mortgagee or the Mortgagee's attorney. The description of the premises contained in said mortgage shall control in the event of an error in this publication. TIME WILL BE OF THE ESSENCE.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

NEWSPAPER PROMOTERS WANTED

Boston's only free daily newspaper is seeking energetic, part-time newspaper promoters to distribute the Boston Metro at select MBTA commuter locations throughout Greater Boston.

Successful candidates will be able to interact comfortably and politely with the public and be energetic, outgoing and imaginative. Reliability is essential: you must be on time and have a flawless attendance record.

Three hour shifts, Monday through Thursday, typically run from 6:00 AM until 9:00 AM. Some mid-day shifts also may be available for able-bodied promoters on bicycle routes. Compensation is $11.00 per hour.

All candidates are welcome to visit our offices at 234 Congress Street (4th Floor), Boston to complete an application between the hours of 11 AM and 4 PM and have a brief interview. Also, bring a government-issue picture ID and your social security card. PLEASE: no email applications.

Aries Use your experience, knowledge and intellect to negotiate on your own behalf. An unexpected proposal will bring in extra cash. Book some vacation time with a loved one.

Taurus Avoid an emotional dispute by facing troublesome situations before they escalate. Common sense and compromise will help tame any trouble that's brewing.

Gemini Business ventures are best handled without emotion. You must have a clear view of what's happening if you want to emerge with the highest return.

Cancer Don't bottle up your feelings. If you let a situation fester, you will end up over-reacting or doing something uncalled for. Don't get angry if you want to succeed.

Leo Offer to do your part, but don't let anyone talk you into taking on their responsibilities. Getting trapped in someone's melodrama will lead to conflicts and deception.

Virgo Emotional problems will surface if you are disenchanted about a partnership or collaborative project. Be honest, diplomatic and ready to suggest impartial solutions.

Libra A short trip or a meeting that addresses questions you've been laboring over will help you make a tricky decision. Plan your action and make your move.

Scorpio Test your stamina. Take on a challenge, strengthen your physique and enhance your appearance. A healthy attitude will be noticed and complimented.

Sagittarius A friend or co-worker will disappoint you. Keep personal information a secret to avoid being manipulated. Problems will result from dishonest communication.

Capricorn Emotional issues regarding a contract or personal financial matter will surface. Walk away from a venture if it doesn't feel right. You will do better on your own.

Aquarius Showing your intelligence and clearly and emotionally expressing what you want to see happen will win you favors and support. Be yourself.

Pisces Emotional discussions will leave you feeling uncertain. Don't make a move until you are sure that the information you've been given is reliable. EUGENIA LAST
